

Termites - is your property regularly inspected?

Just like your own property of residence termites can strike anywhere, leaving countless thousands of dollars' worth of damage in their wake!

The best line of defence has always been to ensure your property is checked annually by a qualified pest control inspector.

It is recommended that you have your property checked annually, and not doing so can have severe consequences. It is also important to note that your building insurance and/or landlord insurance policy specifically excludes cover for damage caused by termites, so it pays to have your property regularly inspected by a professional.

This information was provided by LPMA www.lpma.com.au